Lori Presthus

Lori's journey has included working as a professional cellist and, most recently, becoming a published artist. In her line of handmade jewelry, Lori collaborates with resin artist, Julia Gardner. The jewelry is based on images from Lori's egg tempera paintings. The images are printed to size with pigment based archival ink on acid free papers. The prints are placed in various bezels; then, resin is poured into the bezel enveloping the print and drying to a glass-like finish enhancing the beauty of the art. Some of the pieces are embellished with beadwork.
